

Beef, Veal and Lamb Report - Despite declining from the week prior, beef production remains robust, with last week's output coming in 7.6% over a year ago. Still, what was once an abundance of beef pressuring the cutouts, turned to robust retail interest that boosted the USDA cutout values to a record single-day rise. While further upside potential may exist, price increases will likely begin to wane as many restaurant and foodservice operations remain closed in the U.S. Active wholesale interest is expected to cover some of the lost foodservice demand, but when foodservice buying eventually returns, a resurgence of beef price rises may be seen.
